IRISH BISHOP ATTACKS ENGLISH

By Telegram to The Freeman. Dublin, Ireland, Nov. 16.—A brilliant attack against the British government for "forcing Irishmen to fight for her" is made by the Very Rev. Edward Thomas, Roman Catholic bishop of Limerick, in a letter to the Munster News and other Irish newspapers.

"The treatment of poor Irish emigrant lads at Liverpool is enough to make any Irishman's blood boil," writes Bishop Thomas. "What wrong have they done that they should deserve insults and outrage at the hands of a brutal English mob?"

"They do not want to be forced into the English army and sent to fight England's battles in some distant part of the world. They are supposed to be free men but they are made to feel they are prisoners who may be compelled to lay down their lives for a cause that is not worth three pence of pins to them."

"These poor Cannought peasants know little or nothing of the meaning of this war and much prefer to be allowed to till their own potato gardens in peace."

"It seems cruel and wrong to attack them because they cannot rise to the level of disinterested imperialism such as that of T. P. O'Connor and others."

"What have their forebears ever got from England that they should die for her. John Redmond will say that the home rule law is on the statute books, but any intelligent Irishman will say that the home rule bill was passed with the express intention that it should never go into effect."

"This war may be just—or it may be unjust. Any fair minded man will admit that it is England's war and not Ireland's. Yet poor fellows who do not see the advantage of dying for such a cause are to be insulted as 'shirkers and cowards.' It is there is to be conscription let it be enforced all around, but it seems to be intensely unjust to leave English shirkers by the millions go free and then coerce a small remnant of the Irish race into a war which they do not understand."

PRESIDENT ORDERS CRITIC RESTORED

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Acting on orders received direct from President Wilson, assistant postmaster general D. G. Roper today ordered George Burkhitt, assistant postmaster at Winnetka, Ill., restored to his post. Roper sent the following telegram to Postmaster Kloepper at Winnetka:

"Restore Burkhitt immediately. Sending you written communication dealing fully with matter."

Burkhitt was discharged by Kloepper because he criticised the President's engagement to Mrs. Norman Galt so soon after the death of Mrs. Wilson.

Roper's action closes the case, it was announced. It was explained at the white house this morning that the President's second order of yesterday, calling for Burkhitt's immediate reinstatement "without any ifs or howevers" did not reach the postoffice department yesterday.

When the order was received there today immediate action was taken.

A report that President Wilson is greatly displeased with the way some officials handled the matter and some heads are likely to fall could not be verified today. At the white house it was said that the matter was closed with Burkhitt's reinstatement. Officials at the postoffice department would not discuss the case further than to say that the president's request had been granted.

Leaves Disposed Of.

The disposal of leaves in the streets, always a problem to cities, has been accomplished by employees of the street department in Kingston in a systematic and effective manner. Householders have co-operated with the city employees and as a result the streets for the most part are clean and neat at the approach of winter. Some of the leaves have been burned but the larger quantity of them have been carted away.

Hebrew School Growing.

The enrollment at the Kingston Hebrew School, corner of Post and Spring streets, has grown to such an extent that the trustees have engaged another teacher to assist the Rev. Murdock. The new teacher who has assumed his duties at the school is the Rev. Cohen of New York. The school now has an attendance of fifty scholars.

Butterfly Ball Tickets.

Tickets for the Butterfly Ball are out. They are on sale at every drug store in the city, also at Forsyth and Davis. Winter's stationery and music store, and the Woman's Exchange. Mrs. T. J. Hickey, vice-president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the hospital, has charge of the distribution of the tickets and will supply any member who will take some to sell.

Shoots Deer Through Window.

The O. & W. station agent at St. Joseph's glanced out of the station Saturday and saw a big buck strolling around, close to the open window. He picked up his rifle and fired at the deer without moving from his seat. The animal dropped.

Supper a Success.

The supper given under the auspices of the German Sick and Aid Society on Monday evening in Griffith's Hall was a success both socially and financially and 280 people had supper. During the evening President John Wolf of the society delivered an able address.

Gambler De Lacy Dead.

Peter De Lacy, foremost for many years among the poolroom gambling fraternity of New York city and a leading figure in later days in the fights that practically wiped out horse racing in New York and New Jersey, died Saturday night.

Tax on Checks Proposed.

The levy of a stamp tax on checks has been suggested to the administration by some Democrats. It has been estimated that a tax of two cents on checks would raise about $10,000,000 a year. Officials say about 1,500,000 checks are written in the United States every day.

WAYSIDE INN TO BE SANITARIUM

It is reported on apparently reliable authority that the Wayside inn, a large and handsomely furnished hotel in Ellenville, is to be transformed into a sanitarium. The sum of $200,000, it is said, will be expended in making changes in the building to fit it for its new use. The hotel contains 330 rooms. A stock company has been formed and physicians throughout the country have been invited to subscribe for stock. The Wayside Inn has

SMARTNESS ITSELF.

A Grateful Variation From the Suit of Popular Flares.

SEAL AND SIMPLICITY.

Full skirted and box coated, this smart suit is featured in tau colored plaid. The bottom of the short coat is edged with seal, as are the cuffs. A choker collar of seal fastens snugly, and the patch pocket and back of the coat are embroidered with disks of tau silk, different sizes of them giving an interesting detail.

A GRACEFUL GOWN.

A Beautiful Dance Frock For the Debutante.

Deep pink goldenrod satin is the base of this frock, the attractive tunic being tucked up slightly in front in a feebly draped. The back hangs in soft folds.

BEAUTIFUL LINES.

over net. The paneled front is of opalescent beads over net, as is the simple bodice, with its effect of bolero drape. Arched extremes, this gown achieves a beautiful simplicity.

Just Common Salt.

Salt solution is an antiseptic to dry wounds. All skin diseases are relieved by salt and water. A pinch of salt added to mustard prevents skin burning. Salt in the water cleanses glass bottles and chamber wares. On flowers may be kept fresh by adding salt to the water. Rooms scalded in hot salt water wear better and do not break. Salt dissolved in ammonia or alcohol will remove grease spots. Salt thrown in any burning substance will stop the smoke and blaze.

HOW TO CLEAN YOUR CELLAR SCIENTIFICALLY AND OFTEN.

First get together all the necessary implements and supplies. You want a long handled, soft floor brush, an old but stiff broom, a quantity of clean sawdust, a can of lime for whitewash and a couple of good whitewash brushes. Don't buy cheap brushes for economy's sake, for it is pure waste of both money and time. The cheap kind shrink away to wisps in the whitewash and you soon find yourself dabbling with the handle instead of the brush.

Good brushes are a little expensive at the first outlay, but if thoroughly washed out and taken care of they can be used again and again. They will produce better and quicker results. One twelve inch brush with a short handle will work wonders in covering the broad, flat surfaces, and a smaller brush, with a long handle, will reach into inaccessible corners and behind pipes.

The first step in the process is to clear away all rubbish and ashes and open all the windows, while with long handled floor brush and dust brush you sweep down ceiling, walls, pipes, shelves, window sills, top and sides of furnace and every place where cobwebs, dust or ashes accumulate. The dust brush reaches under and in and around where the long brush does not.

After dust has settled put some sawdust in a bucket and pour enough water on it thoroughly dampen it. Spread this damp sawdust around the edges of the floor and in the corners and sweep it up with a broom. Instead of the usual cloud of dust, it will gather up the dust and hold it, leaving the floor clean. It is finally shoveled up and put out with the ashes.

TO AVOID OBESITY.

How Not to Grow Fat and Still Keep Well Nourished.

Many foods are very nourishing, but do not produce fat. The two kinds which create fatty tissues are fats of all kinds, like butter, lard, drippings (foods cooked in them), and the large group of foods classed as starches. If eaten in excess starch will be laid up in the body as a superfluous or stored fat.

Following is a list of nourishing foods which will not produce excess fat:

Light meats, like chicken, white fish, lean beef, all vegetables except potatoes, pumpkins and other starchy kinds, fruits of all kinds except bananas, grains or cereals except oatmeal and rice, beans and cheese, milk (in small quantity) and eggs.

Beer and all malt drinks increase fatty tendency. The diet of milk and eggs will fatten unless exercise is taken or the body is in a very rundown condition.

Exercise, plenty of water between meals and a diet of lean meats and many vegetables and fruits prevent fat. Avoid pastries, cake, fried foods, gravies and sauces. Do not eat between meals. Live in the open air and be active. If possible perspire freely some time each day.

How to Keep Green Vegetables Fresh as From the Garden.

Lettuce, parsley and all other green things may be kept deliciously fresh if first washed in cold water, shaken and then packed in a tin pail that has a very tight cover, so that the air may not penetrate to them, and set in a cool place. In the case of lettuce when the cover is removed the leaves will pop up, and you will find them as crisp and fresh as if they had just come from the garden.

Even lettuce that has wilted to a sorry state will revive wonderfully if subjected to a few hours of such treatment. To purify greens that are to be eaten raw use a pinch of boracic acid powder or table salt in the water in which they are washed.

Tomatoes picked when just ripe and firm and attached to the stems will keep almost indefinitely with no noticeable loss of freshness if covered with brine made by dissolving a teaspoonful of salt in a gallon of pure fresh water.

How to Best Care For Summer Pumps and Low Shoes.

The summer low cuts have been discarded. Many an owner is putting them away, expecting to get a good deal of wear out of them in the spring. But unless properly taken care of she will be sadly disappointed. All shoes are more or less damp with perspiration, and as they dry out the toes turn up and deep wrinkles settle across the leather.

Here is the remedy: Brush well, removing every particle of dust, rub with vasoline, pack full of crushed paper, wrap with paper and pack away.

In the spring you will find them soft and comfortable and a good shape. "A penny saved is a penny earned."

How to Test Wall Paper For the Presence of Arsenic.

Green wall papers should never be used in nurseries, as some contain arsenic and small children may pick off scraps and put them in their mouths. If a piece of green wall paper on being burned smells of garlic, arsenic is present.

Seward's Optimism.

Gambel Bradford says that Seward's "splendid, energetic, triumphant imaginative optimism" is perhaps his greatest merit and surest claim to the affection of posterity. This optimism Seward effectively summoned up in one striking sentence: The improbability of our race is unlimited.

KINGSTON, N. Y., NOV. 16, 1915.

"It must have been." This was the reply in many an instance by witnesses in answer to questions propounded by attorneys in different cases tried at the late term of the Supreme Court. Such an answer does not pass muster, either "yes" or "no" being usually demanded. Asked if such-and-such was not the case relative to a certain accident, condition or episode, a person on the stand testifying, not being entirely sure about it, would say "it must have been," only to bring a prompt objection from one attorney or another and a ruling by the court that the answer should be direct and positive. So the witness would ponder for a few moments, and concluding that some very important point was involved, that on his reply might depend the result of the case, would probably answer "yes" or "no," in spite of his uncertainty, which might have been much or little, instead of taking refuge in the always safe reply of "I do not remember" or "I am not sure."

Statutory law and the procedure of the courts require so much exactness, and lawyers are so insistent and ingenious in pursuing a point advantageous to the side they represent, that it is to be feared witnesses sometimes are led into saying either more or less than "the whole truth and nothing but the truth." The pressing of questions leads a witness, it would seem, reluctantly to put aside doubts and become positive, for the court record, about matters of which he is not positive. As a result the situation is presented in almost if not every case of two sets of witnesses testifying in opposite ways to the same things. One person for the plaintiff will swear positively that so-and-so was the case and another person for the defendant will swear positively that the opposite was the case. Both persons may be sincere in testifying as they do. If the records of testimony were sufficient evidence, every term of court would be followed by numerous prosecutions for perjury. As a matter of fact, perjury is very rare. Persons claiming an occurrence or noting a condition receive widely different impressions and there is little that they see, unless their interest is extraordinary, regarding which they can be positive after a considerable lapse of time. Called into courts with their doubts, they try to express them, but the lawyers will not let them when a "yes" or "no" is wanted, and the doubts yield before the law.

The defeat of Judge A. H. F. Seeger of Orange county for Justice of the Supreme Court in the Ninth District, which is strongly Republican, by Judge William P. Platt of Westchester county, a Democrat, was the result not of any feeling that the Newburgh man was lacking in qualifications for the position, but obviously to Westchester Republicans splitting their ticket for the "home" candidate. They knew Judge Platt to be worthy of the higher position and honor—no more so and perhaps no less than Judge Seeger—and forgetting their political affiliation, they supported him in preference to an "outsider." Westchester county has almost as large a population as the other four counties—Putnam, Dutchess, Orange and Rockland—in the district combined and it repeats its performance of November 2 in future elections for justices. It may eventually obtain something of a monopoly of the judiciary in the "down-river" district. Respectable as Judge Seeger's defeat in his many friends in this section, there is to be observed in the result of the recent election an indication of political independence on the part of voters in the choice of justices which is to be commended, for the reason the political complexion of the bench is made more even and because it carries a warning against the possible nomination by the majority party of an unworthy candidate. It is recalled that when the Ninth District was created some years ago there was a general belief that the Democrats never would be able to elect a candidate.

Judge Kellogg, in his opinion in the Davis case, in which his associates in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court concur unanimously, observes: "The (Ashokan) reservoir occupies the space where many little villages and hundreds of farms formerly were. The people who have been driven from their homes, with their ready money have gone into the surrounding country, and have purchased places and built homes, with the result there has been a quick and ready sale for property throughout this part of Ulster county and probably a greater degree of prosperity and activity than had ever previously been known." Visitors to Kingston frequently inquire as to the effects of the establishment of the reservoir on the business of Kingston and infer the conclusion that this has been injurious because of the wiping out of villages and farms; but as Justice Kellogg says, there has been only a shifting of location and while much land is or will be flooded new land has been brought under cultivation and agricultural interests have enjoyed a rejuvenation throughout the region which has made up for losses. Comparatively few persons whose land was taken for the reservoir have left Ulster county. In the rebuilding, better villages have come into existence, better homes have been constructed and better farms have been laid out and are being cultivated. Agriculture as a whole in Ulster county steadily is advancing, due in no small part to the activities of the Farm Bureau. According to Federal census bureau figures for 1910, the latest available, the value of farm property in this county was $20,000,000, an increase of more than 50 per cent in a decade. In only six other counties was the increase greater and in these cases the appreciation is explainable by the proximity of the land to the metropolis.

Governor Whitman, with the aid of his secretary and an expert from the New York city finance department, has begun work on a tentative state budget for submission to the Legislature in January. The constitution says nothing about the Governor doing anything of the sort, but Mr. Whitman nevertheless is going ahead and is not usurping any other official's authority. The fact is that heads of departments have been submitting budgets in such a form that they could not be given intelligent consideration. Lump sums under the head of "maintenance, supplies and repairs" have been asked for and the whole might be spent for maintenance in extravagant ways, leaving repairs undone and making necessary for them an increased appropriation another year. The Governor in passing on an appropriation bill has to either approve or disapprove an item, being allowed no discretion in reducing the amount. Mr. Whitman, elected on his pledge to reduce expenditures, has gone to the very source of waste in state departments, the heads of which now are required to appear before him and itemize in detail everything required and undergo questioning in regard to it. The resulting budget will be the most comprehensive and economical presented to the Legislature in many years.

Japan is said to be sending to Russia all the munitions it can produce and spare. Long trains of war equipment are dispatched from the island Kingdom thousands of miles for the use of the czar's armies. Not many years ago Japan and Russia were engaged in a desperate struggle in the Far East and the former came out victorious. Apparently time soon heals international sores of war. The belligerents of yesterday may become friends and allies tomorrow. Despite the feeling of bitterness which exists among and the talk of reprisals which may be heard in the countries at war in Europe, the cessation of the struggle may find the nations involved willing to forget much and ready to labor together to maintain peace and heal international wounds. Within a year diplomatic relations may be so fully restored and so amicable as to give no hint of the great struggle the countries engaged in. But in homes all over the nation will be wounds—the wounds of individuals who bore the brunt of the war—which years, age generations, cannot heal.

His Choice.

E. L. Rice, the coal man, went to New York a short time ago and took with him a man who had been employed at his farm for several years, but who never had made the trip down the Hudson.

Mr. Rice decided to show Bill a good time. The first evening in New York he took him into the Plaza restaurant for dinner.

"Well," said Bill to the waiter, "I want one of those steaks and some potatoes."

"Ah, yes," answered the obsequious waiter, "but what kind of potatoes?"

Bill pondered a moment and stroked his chin.

"Well," he said, "I don't know as I care much, but you might bring me some Early Rose."—Syracuse Post Standard.

What's in a Name?

She was a young missionary in China, not yet quite proficient in the language of the country, and was giving a little dinner to some friends. During the course of the meal she asked the servant to bring in some fruit—at least she thought she did.

He objected; she insisted; he refused; she grew angry. At last he left the room.

Presently he returned, carrying a large platter, which he placed before her with an air of supreme contempt. On it, carefully arranged were her husband's everyday trousers!—Weekly Scotsman.

Too Much Pepper.

During a series of evangelistic meetings in a rural community, a rather elderly and notorious character was converted. Some time afterward, in a prayer meeting, he was called upon to lead in prayer. His effort ran about as follows:

"Oh, Lord, we pray Thee to send every family in this community a barrel of potatoes and a barrel of sugar. O Lord! and a barrel of salt, and a barrel of—pepper. Oh, Lord, no! That's too much pepper. Amen!"

The same man, called upon some time later to give a testimony, made this little speech: "Friends, you all know me. You know what kind of a man I was. I was on the wrong road for a long time. I was a sinner and I was going down fast; but now I've been converted and I'm on the right road at last. I'm climbing up to Heaven!"

And to demonstrate his last remark he laid hold of the stove pipe near him and tried to pull himself railingward. But there was a fire in the stove, and before he had time to raise his feet from the floor he yelled:

"My gosh, no! I ain't. I must be on the road to hell again!"—Albany Knickerbocker Press.

He'd Changed, Too.

There was an air of unrest in the cozy little sitting-room. Jones wanted to read his evening paper, but Mrs. Jones preferred to talk.

He stood it some time. Then he threw the paper angrily on the floor and faced his wife.

"Look here!" he snapped. "Whenever I'm at home you're either hammering away at the piano or else your tongue runs on like a millrace. It wasn't so before we were married. You were quiet enough then."

"Of course, I was," retorted Mrs. Jones, preparing for the fray. "Before we were married you were always holding my hands and I couldn't play, and you kept my lips so busy that I couldn't talk."—Philadelphia Record.

The Rev. Thomas F. Duffy.

The Rev. Thomas F. Duffy, of St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, who as stated in The Freeman has been appointed a chaplain of the New York police department and pastor of St. Bridget's Church, is a native of Poughkeepsie and was ordained at Dutchess county in 1895. Father Duffy before going to Rosendale was for 11 years assistant to St. Henry A. Brown, of St. Agnes's Church, New York, and for a time pastor of the Highland Falls church.

J. Russell Harris of Rensselaer, conductor on a New York Central mail train, was killed while coupling cars in Staatsburgh on Monday morning. He was 32 years old and had been in the employ of the railroad for 25 years.

Sluths Seek Conspirators.

Secret agents of the United States government have been in Poughkeepsie tracing the movements of a number of former residents of the city, of German extraction, in connection, it is hinted, with alleged nation-wide plotting against munitions factories.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURER HERE

Charles L. Ohrenstein, C. S. D., member of the board of lecture-ship of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, delivered an address before about 300 persons in the auditorium of the high school on Monday evening. The speaker was introduced by Walter P. Crane and held the close attention of his audience. An abstract of the lecture follows:

Jesus preached very little, but did a great deal. The gospels show this. From boyhood he was about his Father's business. This business consisted of teaching by example as well as by precept what God is, what God does, and how God does what He does. All Christians will admit that Jesus' works ranged from providing for the simplest human needs, such as the tax money in the draft of fishes, to the healing of all kinds of diseases, and as in the case of Lazarus, to the raising of the dead.

Science is defined as the "knowledge of principles and causes." That Jesus did the works which have been indicated is attested by those who have been looked upon as the best and most honest of men, men who witnessed them. Now, did Jesus do these works through ignorance or mere belief in something, or did He do them because of a specific, demonstrable knowledge of their underlying principle or cause? No rational being would claim that He did them through anything but such knowledge, and if they were thus wrought through an exact knowledge of science, applied by Jesus Christ, were they not wrought through Christian Science? That Jesus looked upon his works as the result of this science, is indicated by that immortal utterance: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall be done also," a definite demand upon his followers for like proofs that they understand and practice His teachings, and His immediate followers, and their followers for three hundred years after them, did as He commanded.

It was this life-purpose, this life-mission of showing forth the truth and power of God, clearly seen by Jesus who was only twelve years old, which prompted him to say: "Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" In other words, know ye not that as man, the image and likeness of God, I must show forth our Father, omnipotent life and love? It was this reflection of the Father, the divine spirit, without measure, that enabled Jesus to heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead.

The recognition that no man has any other true mission than that which Jesus had, led Mrs. Eddy to the discovery of this science. It healed her when at the point of death as the result of an accident, but she did not stop with that. Nothing short of the prospective healing and redemption of all mankind could satisfy her loving heart. She practiced what she had discovered, healing others and teaching them to do the same. She made clear her doctrine in a text-book of this science, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," a book that has done more for the alleviation of human ills and the redemption of mankind than any book ever written except the Bible. She organized the church which now spreads its branches over the whole known world, with members numbering hundreds of thousands who like her and her immediate followers have been healed, many of them of what are called incurable diseases.

Looking back after fifty years, when the idea of spiritual healing was new to the world, and tracing its progress, one can see, though dimly, the difficulties the noble woman must have encountered. Through unimaginable hardships, trials and persecutions, she bore herself not with mere fortitude, but with a Christ-like confidence which will continue to be an ever increasing inspiration to mankind.

Too Much Booze Gets Them in the City Lockup.

Monday afternoon Matthew Welsh and Edward Dixon came to Kingston from Poughkeepsie just to enjoy a little vacation and in honor of the event they proceeded to visit several of the well known thirft emporiums with the result that in settling the dust they had acquired in their throats on the journey here they hoisted too large a cargo of joy water aboard to enable them to navigate the corner of Hasbrouck avenue and the Strand in safety that evening.

In fact their cargo had a tendency to make the pair indulge in vocal efforts of song and story and Dixon, the older of the twain, after singing all of the songs he knew developed a streak of profanity that attracted the attention of Policeman Lawrence and he placed Dixon under arrest.

"Mr. Officer," pleaded Welsh with a hic-cough, "if you are going to take him, take me too. I just can't bear to leave him alone."

The officer, after a quick glance at the pleader, saw that he had also imbibed too much and he escorted the twain to the county jail where they were locked up over night.

This morning when Recorder Andrew Lang it was seen that Dixon was an old offender and had appeared before the court at least three times so far this year on the same charge and he was given ten days in the county jail to recuperate.

Welsh, who was still "half seas over," pleaded that he be given another chance. Said he, "I am a poor honest working man but I am a good fellow even though I do drink a little too much sometimes." He said that he and his companion had come to Kingston to have a vacation and confessed they had got drunk together.

Asked how he came to be arrested, he said that he had told the officer to take him along too as he did not want to leave Dixon alone. If he was discharged this time he would lose no time in returning to Poughkeepsie.

After hearing his story Recorder Lang discharged him. It being his first offence, and he started gladly for home.

Winston May Build Shops.

A survey is being made of the lands connected with the property purchased some time ago by J. O. Winston along the Saugerties road, near the city line and adjacent to the West Shore tracks. This work is being done, it is said, preparatory to laying a switch. Several months ago The Freeman stated that the Winstons expected to remove their shops at Brown's Station to Kingston as soon as the work of the reservoir was completed.

BASKETBALL NOTES RECENTLY GATHERED

On Wednesday evening the re-organized New York State Basketball League, more compact and more evenly balanced than ever will make its initial bow. The opening struggle will be contested at Gloversville between the Eves led by Captain Ross R. Trumble, the popular leader of Company G of that place, and the Mohawk entry, this season under the management of Jack Nolls, one of the best center men ever donning the basketball shoe, and also one of the most favorite athletes of the Mohawk Valley. From then on, until early March the fans of six leading cities in central and eastern New York, Hudson, Troy, Schenectady, Gloversville, Mohawk and Utica will be served with a high class brand of front basketball, one deserving of liberal support and hearty co-operation.

Troy Has Good Club.
The Troy team has been working out for some time and embraces some very clever playing talent. Dave Beaver, the former Union College star, is a member of the Trojan outfit this season, playing a forward position with Joe Evers, brother of the famous Johnny Evers, of baseball fame. Beaver in college ranks attracted the attention of all wherever he exhibited and his appearance in Troy should be welcomed. Phillips, who was with Troy part of last year, will be found at center for Troy, while Tom O'Neil and Charley Wacker will do guard duty. Bolster and Canwell will be substitutes. This collection promises to be much of a factor and will well bear watching.

Schenectady Well Represented.
Schenectady also has a crack entry in the St. Michael's team, a quintet that has played intact for years. The Dorp City, one of the most enterprising of the state, is agog with enthusiasm over league ball and will stand firmly behind their experienced representatives. The St. Michael's team for years occupied a leading position among the state's semi-professional clubs and, attested by the experience of playing together so long, should be able to keep Schenectady in the foreground from the very outset. The line-up includes such well known favorites as Ben Butch, Fritz, Noyah, Herman Butch, Kline and Haubner.

Gloversville Bears Watching.
Gloversville, always in the running, argues well to continue so this season. Captain Trumble has labored night and day, annexing a bunch of capable players and will start the season with a well conditioned outfit, consisting of Waters, Patrick, Younglove, Holmes, Ryan, Stone, Starns and Gill. It is expected that, after his work terminates at Colgate, where he is now marshaling the Maroon net stars to the New York State team, he will, but recently one of the best college players of the east, will join the Glove City outfit. This will give Gloversville one of the classiest teams in the section and would almost assure them of the 1915-16 honors.

Classy Hudson Line-Up.
With Trim McKinstry at the head Hudson fans look for a first division team at all times and well they might. McKinstry, a huge favorite here, has been practicing a well rounded set of athletes for some weeks past and reports have it that the Hudson aggregation, with Shepard and Storm playing the forward positions, Van Vleet doing the jump ball and McKinstry and Molony in the backfield, will be considerable of a blackhorse in the championship chase. Although but little has been heard of the team, with the exception of its leader, it can safely be said that it will be a hummer, as they have represented the National Guard company at Hudson for several years, and have met and defeated many of the former State League teams.

Mohawk Has Formidable Team.
Although sustaining considerable of a loss in the departure of Chief Mueller Jack Nolls and Harry Day, promoters of the Mohawk team are far from discouraged and are busily engaged in rounding out a formidable outfit to represent Utica's thriving suburb. The team has been coming along nicely, winning several exhibition games already this season and are enjoying the confidence of a true fan. The team will consist of Burnham, Shelly and Johnson, forwards; Sullivan, center, and Nolls and List guards.

The Utica Team is Strong.
Manager Wacker of the Utica team is very cheerful over the Utes' chances and expects to open the season with a victory over the Mohawk aggregation on Thursday. Wacker, as a large squad to pick a fast center from, having about fourteen players practicing daily. Brother Ed Ray, Schuler, Alberding, Roberts, Hall, Reizer, Schores, Grant, Cotter, Lanes, Perkins, Molloy, Cunningham, White and Chamberlain. The majority of these players are Utica boys who have been playing semi-professional ball.

E. C. Van Der Laan, a student of Rutgers seminary, occupied the pulpit of the Reformed Church the past Sunday morning. He took for the subject of his talk to the junior congregation, the religious reformation of Israel, under the rule of the young King Joshua. He told of his persistent effort and final success, although the king preceding him had fallen under the influence of idolatry. This showed that a child could do, his text from which he drew his sermon to the senior congregation. And Caleb sited the people before Moses and said, let us go in at once and possess it for we are well able to overcome it." The principal theme of his talk was, "Resisting Unto Victory."

There will be an entertainment in the basement of the Reformed Church on Friday evening, Nov. 26. The play is entitled, "Maidens All Forlorn." The cast of characters are the Misses Ruth Barnhart, Ethel Moore, Sara Geary, Nellie Dwyer, Fay Reynolds and Elizabeth Hutchins. The price of admission to the entertainment is twenty cents. After the entertainment a penny lunch will be served. The play holds all promises of being a great success. So come one and all and bring your friends, enjoy the fun, and spend a social evening. Remember a penny lunch is served after the entertainment.

Concert by Church Choir.

A concert of unusual merit is to be given at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium on Monday evening, December 6, under the auspices of the choir of the Rondout Presbyterian Church. The soloists who will appear at this concert are Miss Virginia Los Kamp, contralto, of New York city, Judson House, tenor, of New York city, and Ford Hummel, violinist, of Kingston. Miss Elsa Hildebrandt of Kingston, a graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music, will accompany Miss Los Kamp. Miss Los Kamp, who is already well known in Kingston, where she is heard as soloist in the church and where she has several times been heard in concert, has a beautiful and sympathetic voice. Mr. House is a talented young tenor, whose singing with the New York Symphony at Saratoga was compared to that of the great tenor, Enrico Caruso. Mr. Hummel has made for himself an enviable reputation as a violinist, his exquisite touch and depth of feeling always delighting his audiences. The choir will sing choruses from the works of Gounod, Offenbach, Sullivan and others. It is expected that the capacity of the auditorium will be taxed to the fullest, as a large number of the music-loving people of Kingston and vicinity will be eager to avail themselves of such a rare opportunity. Through the generosity of some who are interested in having good music in Kingston, it has been made possible to offer the tickets at the low price of fifty cents each.

AMAZING GROWTH BY CHURCHES IN U. S.

Increase is Faster Than Population in Past Decade, Laymen's Missionary Movement Shows—Average Gifts of Members.

The laymen's missionary movement is showing, in connection with its campaign now on, the growth of Christian Churches in the United States in the last ten years. With hardly an exception, it finds such growth to be from two to two and a half times in all save membership, and that to have grown somewhat more rapidly than the population. To maintain all Baptist Churches in the United States, together with their work, took ten years ago $12,400,000; last year, $22,400,000. Presbyterians jumped from $17,000,000 to $26,100,000. The Episcopal churches went from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 and the Methodist from $21,000,000 to $28,000,000.

Gifts to others, apart from support of local churches, took similar jumps. Baptist gifts to missions, education and all form of charities doubled in amount; Methodists' gifts doubled and $500,000 more; Disciples' went from $1,500,000 to $2,500,000, and Presbyterians from $2,500,000 to $5,500,000. Reformed, Congregational, Lutheran, United Brethren and most of the smaller bodies made like records. Foreign mission gifts went from $8,120,000 to $17,165,000, or more than double, and played the United States at the head of the foreign mission giving nations.

The average gifts of members have also increased in almost all of the bodies. Baptists are giving 40 per cent more than they did ten years ago. Congregationalists, 24 per cent; Lutherans, 33 per cent; Presbyterians, 20 per cent, and Disciples, Methodists and others considerably more in every case.

Attendance at movement conventions is reported to be double the members at similar conventions years ago. While there has always been growth, it is shown that growth in almost all bodies were never so large in all lines as during the last ten years.

ALBANY DOCTOR
Makes Wonderful Cures
Will be in Kingston
FRIDAY, NOV. 19th
AT 340 BROADWAY

DR. SWINBURNE OF ALBANY.

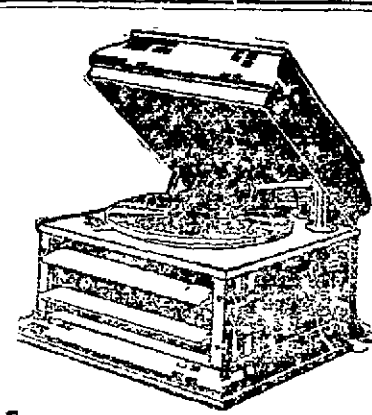

Has been a successful practicing physician for over twenty years. He has for many years devoted his entire time to the study and cure of chronic diseases—just such cases that resist the skill of the ordinary physician, and it is by Dr. Swinburne's original improved methods that many patients whose cases were pronounced incurable by other physicians were restored to health.

Stomach trouble is the cause of many of the ailments of all sickness, and unless the stomach performs its functions properly, you cannot enjoy health. In the treatment of stomach, liver and intestinal disorders Dr. Swinburne's methods will produce remarkable results and enable patients who have suffered for years from indigestion or irregular bowel functions to realize permanent relief.

In the treatment of many other diseases Dr. Swinburne's success in curing is largely due to the fact that he treats the stomach at the same time, which proves the quickest means of building up the system, after which the constitutional diseases will readily yield to the specific treatment and health will result.

Other diseases being successfully treated are: Catarrhal Troubles, Kidney Diseases, Dropsy or Heart Affections, Shortness of Breath or Asthma, Chronic Coughs or Lung Diseases, Neuritis, Rheumatism, Catarrhs, Nervousness or other Nerve Troubles, Diabetes, and blood diseases, Special Weakness, Debility, Malnutrition and Private Diseases of men and women.

MEL SHEPPARD QUILTS

Robbed of Speed by Injury Recently Sustained in Race.

King of Middle-Distance Runners and Really One of World's Greatest Athletes—Won Points in Two Olympics.

There is a genuine sorrow over the fact that little "Mel" Sheppard will never race again. The injury he sustained in his knee in Madison Square garden is serious enough to rob him forever of his great speed. Up to a year ago he was the king of the middle-distance runners, and one of the world's greatest athletes. At the time of the injury Sheppard was training his field, as he always does before his wonderful spurts. Just as he got going great guns he caught his foot in a loose board and was thrown.

His knee and arm were badly injured, and the physician who attended him gave it as his opinion that the matchless Mel was through for ever.

Twice Sheppard made it possible for the United States to win the Olympic championship—in London and Stockholm. Practically unbeatable he was along in 1910, at from 800 to 1,000 yards. It was in this year that he declared him the greatest all-round runner that ever lived. Covering a period of three months, he created 12 world and American records. At times he took speed strokes and could run six miles as well as he could a quarter. Sheppard's greatest feats were in the London Olympic games in 1908. He was the hero of the meet, being the leading point winner. He totaled 11 1/2 points for the Stars and Stripes. He didn't train for scribing above the 800-meter event, but he triumphed the best mile in the world at 1:50. In both of these events he broke Olympic records.

Sheppard was born at Almonesson Lake, N. J., in 1885. He gained fame as a football player before he took up running. In 1906 he joined the Irish-American A. A. and in his very first race he defeated those wonders, Jim Sullivan and Harvey Cohn. From that time on he was the bright particular star of the organization.

BOXING WITH FEET POPULAR

Attempts to Introduce French Style of Exercise into This Country Never Was Successful.

The form of boxing known as "la savate," in which the feet are used as well as the fists, and kicks are as legitimate as blows, has for a long time been a popular exercise in French gymnasiums and schools of arms. In this country it is practically unknown, although attempt has been made at various times to introduce it here.

The first principle is that the whole weight of the body shall be placed on one leg, and that the farthest from the adversary, says Washington Star. The disengaged leg is used as an adjunct to the fists, and flies out with astonishing swiftness and accuracy of aim.

The "coup de savate" proper is the "chastise" of the right foot, or "gifle," a dangerous blow, but one that is easily avoided by raising the left knee to the level of the waist. Forcible as this method of assault and defense is, it is the "coup d'arrêt," or straight stop hit, and the "coup de figure," or swinging face kick, may be, and undoubtedly are with an expert, the parries and guards are simple and sure if properly used.

FATE OF A PIRATE CREW.

Strange Case of the Nancy Brig and a Hungry Shark.

In the museum at Kingston, Jamaica, there are some tattered ships' papers, brown with age and salt water, and a small tin canister. These articles attest the truth of the stranger pirate story ever told.

In 1790 the crew of the Nancy brig were apparently honest traders, but did some piracy now and then on the side. One day they found it necessary to go into Kingston for supplies. Before doing so they naturally removed all traces of their buccannery trade. Among other things they threw overboard this tin canister stuffed with papers taken from ships they had sunk, with comments written on the margin by the pirate captain.

Later in the day a British frigate was becalmed near the shore and the sailors spent their leisure catching sharks. Presently they hauled up a big fellow, cut him open and found the tin case with the papers inside. These were taken to the captain, who, as soon as a breeze sprang up, sailed into Kingston harbor, found the Nancy brig; there and the crew tried, convicted and hanged in chains at Port Royal.

A Strange Experience

Was It Coincidence or Supernatural?

By F. A. MITCHEL.

I am a doctor. One night I was called up to attend a woman who had suddenly been taken ill. My horse had gone lame the day before so I was obliged to walk. I passed over the mile that separated me from the patient with her husband and was well satisfied to have his company for, though a part of the way lay through a village, even this was unlighted. Not a person did we meet on the way, and scarcely a word could I draw from my companion, who was much distressed about his wife.

I asked him what he supposed to be his wife's ailment. This time I received a response, but not one that would help me in deciding upon any treatment. He told me that her trouble was neural; that she had worried herself into a breaking down of the system. They had but one child, a daughter, who, being grown, had left them. The mother not only grieved for the absent one, but had become convinced that she was in danger.

I asked the man if his wife had any reason to suspect such a condition, and he told me that so far as he knew she had not. But he added that she had given evidence of seeing beyond the limits of what could be discerned by the senses; that she had known within our being informed of happenings many miles distant from her. Years before a son had left them for the sea. One night the mother awakened her husband and told him that their boy was struggling in the water, then that he was dead. A month later news came that the vessel in which the young man sailed had been wrecked. All this looked to me as if I would meet a hopeless case.

And as soon as I stepped into the sickroom and saw her I knew that she was in a critical condition. But the case was not hopeless, and I worked with all the ingenuity I possessed to save her. My efforts were in vain. An hour after my arrival she died.

It is questionable if any medical man ever gets used to losing a patient. At least I never get used to it. We are entrusted with the whole responsibility of the life of the invalid. When our efforts are successful we feel a pleasurable sensation; when the patient dies on our hands we are apt to feel that had we adopted another line of treatment the result might have been different.

I left the stricken household to walk home alone. Above the stars were shining just as calmly as shortly before I had entered the house where lay the invalid. I wondered if a power to bridge the vast distance between them and us had been given the disembodied spirit. The planet Jupiter stood high in the east. Had the woman been borne to a vision that could take in the planet's immensity? Could she move with the instantaneous rapidity of electricity, and was she already passing the far distant Neptune on his way to the great vacuum that separates our sun from other fixed stars?

I was passing through the village and at this moment was before the only church it contained. Suddenly the stillness was broken by a clang. I started as if a clap of thunder instead of a village clock had struck upon my sense of hearing. Stopping, I looked up to note whence the sound came, and some moments passed before I realized that what had startled me came from the striking of a metal clapper on a metal bell. I waited for the next stroke, but it did not come. The clock had struck one hour after midnight.

I passed on, but in a moment turned for a glance at the quaint little building, deserted except when services were held in it, while every other house in the village contained human beings. The church and spire being white, I could easily distinguish them in the gloom.

Is that a ray of light glimmering through the slats of the great arched window? Impossible! The church is the last place in the village to be lighted at such an hour.

Nevertheless, there is a glimmer that can only come from an artificial light. Had I been superstitious there would have been something uncanny in seeing light in a church when all the houses where people lived were dark. But with me the discovery had a contrary effect. The loneliness by which I had been surrounded was broken. There was light, and light at that time of night meant human beings. I felt that there were persons in the church, and I felt, too, their companionship.

I confess curiosity was the chief motive power that induced me to turn, retrace my steps, go up on to the little pillared porch before the tower and listen. I thought I could hear voices within. Turning the knob, I found the door unlocked, opened it and entered a vestibule. A screen stood between me and the body of the church, and, stepping to its side, the interior was revealed to me.

At the other end of the building were three persons. One of them faced me and was evidently waiting. The other two were a man and a woman. The man was talking earnestly to the woman, evidently trying to persuade her to do something, which I judged was to consent to a marriage then and there. Taking her by the hand, he attempted to draw her to stand before the other man, whom I surmised to be a clergyman. But she resisted.

In the clergyman I recognized a person who had long been familiar to me, and I knew he was not a clergyman. I could not understand the situation. In the olden time mock marriages were used to entrap innocent girls, but in these days we seldom hear of them. Nevertheless I suspected that these men were trying to practice a deception on this woman.

She turned away from them and started down the aisle. The man who was persuading her caught her and drew her back, pouring pleading words into her ear. This time he tried a little force, urging her up before the supposed clergyman, whom I heard say harshly:

"I am tired of this vacillation. If you are going to marry this man let us proceed with the ceremony. If not let us go."

At the same time the would be groom changed his manner from persuasion to something resembling severity, and I could see that they were trying to influence the girl to do that which she felt she ought not to do. In this way she was induced to stand before the clergyman, and he began the marriage service. But he had spoken only a few words when she broke away from them and ran like a deer down the aisle. The groom ran after her, but she had got the start of him, and the distance was short. She ran into my arms. Whether it was the shock at finding a man where she had supposed there was no one or she believed she had been headed off in her flight I know not, but she gave a shriek.

"Fear nothing," I said to her. "I am a friend, a protector."

This reassured her, and she clung to me. The would be groom came up and, looking at me, angrily asked, "Who are you, and what are you doing here?" "Who I am?" I replied, "does not matter, and what I am doing here is self evident. Just at present I am keeping this girl from an imposition. I don't know who you are, but I do know that the man who is playing par-a is a livery stable keeper from whom I have occasionally hired a horse."

Before I had finished the liveryman disappeared through a door back of the pulpit. The other stood evidently uncertain what to do. The girl, who had received from me information which astonished her, turned upon the man from whom she had escaped like a fury. He took the dressing she gave him with bowed head. She snatched in tears.

"If I have done wrong it has been through love of you."

"Don't you believe that story," I said to the girl. "A man who loves a woman does not try to draw her into a mock marriage."

I saw by the man's appearance, his manner and his dress that he was what we call high bred, and it was plain that he had no intention of marrying the girl. But I saw no advantage in discussing the matter further.

"Will you come with me?" I asked her.

"Or me?" said the other, with a pleading look.

There was evidence of the man's power over her, for she hesitated a moment, then put her arm through mine, and I led her away. Leaving the man in the church, we stepped out into the night.

There were the same stars in the heavens that I had seen but a few minutes before, but I looked up at them with a different feeling. Then there was mixed with the awe I felt in their "eternal grandeur a sense of my human insignificance, uselessness. Now there was in me the consciousness that I had saved a fellow being from wreck.

There was another feeling. I could not get rid of an impression that the spirit of the woman I had seen pass from life to eternity might have had something to do with my having passed the church in time to save a soul, though I had failed in saving a life.

"Where shall I take you?" I asked the girl.

"Home."

Instead of going in the direction I would go she turned and walked the other way. As we proceeded she gave me her story in brief. She had been to the city studying art. There she had met the man from whom I had saved her. He had courted her, but she had suspected him. To get rid of his influence she had started for home. He had taken the same train and played his game so well that he persuaded her to go back with him as his wife. The rest I knew.

We were walking over the same road I had traversed in going to see my patient. Then I had had a companion, a man suffering from anxiety. Now my companion was a girl who had barely escaped a great evil. Somewhere down in me was a glimmering sensation that all these happenings were parts of a connected story. I looked up again at the stars, wondering if they knew what was but a faint impression to me.

The house where lay my last patient was on the road we were traversing. When we reached it the girl said:

"This is—"

I gasped.

"Home. I have come back to my father and mother."

For the first time in my life I shrank at a professional duty. I should have prepared this girl for what she was to meet. I could not bring myself to do so. I took her hand, kissed it and with a "God bless you," sobbed rather than spoken, turned away.

NEW YORK FARMS ARE IN DEMAND

By Telegram to The Freeman
Albany, Nov. 16.—The farms of New York state are being more extensively cultivated now than heretofore is evinced by a recent bulletin of the state department of agriculture which shows that during the past year or two over one hundred idle farms have been sold and are at present being worked.

It has been the endeavor of the state department of agriculture to encourage agricultural pursuits and when it became apparent some years ago that the number of farms being worked was falling below the standard alarmingly, a bulletin was issued each year showing the location, price and possibilities of idle farms in the various counties of the state.

There is at the present time scarce a county where there is not an idle farm or two in spite of the efforts of the agricultural department to keep them all occupied. The number which were at one time abandoned by their owners for one or another reason is considerably reduced.

The population of New York state is practically one-tenth of that of the United States. Of its practically ten millions of residents the 52 cities and 465 incorporated villages provide habitation for nearly a non-stop producing army the duty of which the state department of agriculture believe is to get back to nature and stimulate agricultural production.

State Commissioner of Agriculture Wilson believes that a considerable area of land now included in the farms of the state should have been allowed to remain in forest as at the time of the clearing there was sufficient and had it been properly worked to supply the population of the state with all needed agricultural products.

New York state farms today offer unexcelled opportunities to the farmer who is in the farming business to make money and who desires every necessary educational and social advantage. New York farms are the best New York transportation, water, steam or electricity is approached by that of no other state and New York highways furnish to all parts of the state the best and most accessible link to connect the farm with the consumer. Says Commissioner of Agriculture Wilson:

During the present year greater interest has been manifested in the agricultural conditions of this state by large numbers of residents of other states who for various reasons contemplate a change. By those of this state who wish to engage in agriculture and by citizens of Canada and many for an countries indicating that on people will improve farms at lower prices than prevail in any other part of the country. Located as they are close to the seaboard and the very best markets in the United States.

The above and more like it is called attention to by the state department of agriculture in its campaign to populate the run down partially worked or entirely idle farms of the state.

Towing Continues Brisk.
Towing on the Hudson river continues brisk and the tug Levis is bound down the river with a heavy tow while the Washington is bound up from New York with a tow. This season has been a bumper one for both the towing lines and tug owners of barges and scows and New York harbor presents a scene of unexampled activity due to the fact that the railroad is chartering all the scows and barges of the river in order to store freight in the boats to release the freight cars and prevent a congestion of railroad traffic by reason of lack of freight cars. Quite a number of men from this city have gone to New York and vicinity and secured jobs at good wages handling freight at the railroad terminals in Jersey City and Weehawken.

CONTEST IN CLUB A GREAT SUCCESS

On Monday evening the Wiltwreck Social Club of the Church of the Comforter held its monthly social in the chapel. The club was organized last spring with about 15 members and the membership has been increased steadily until there are now about 80 young persons on its rolls. Two months ago the organization was divided into two sides, to be known as the Reds and Blues for the purpose of engaging in a manly contest to see which could raise the more money for the church by November 15.

The contest came to a close Monday evening and the total amount raised by the two sides was $210.77. The Reds have been victorious. After the result was announced the magnificent spirit shown by both sides was beautifully beheld. Let members, congratulated the other on the splendid result and with rousing song and cheer it was an occasion long to be remembered by all who were present.

Frank Elmendorf is president of the club which has proved of great help to the church and its pastor, the Rev. Wilbur F. Stowe. Two months ago the organization voted unanimously to assist the pastor in boosting attendance at the Sunday evening services with the result nearly all the members of the club have been present at the services. Besides saving the attendance on Sunday evenings has been greatly increased. It is an inspiration to the pastor to feel that these young persons are standing back of him. Spiritually, socially and financially the club is a real benefit to the Church of the Comforter.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Nov. 16.—Was Percy Houghton trying to belittle Cornell or merely trying to save the wounds of Princeton when he said after the Princeton game, that the Princeton eleven was the best Harvard has played since he began coaching the Crimson hopefuls in 1908?

Cornell, you know, beat Harvard 19 to 0, whereas Harvard beat Princeton 19 to 6. If Houghton is right, that would indicate that the Cornell team was better than the Harvard team and infinitely superior to the Tiger eleven. But Percy says that isn't the case.

A headline writer informs all those who care for the information that "HERB HUNTER WILL PLAY WITH GIANTS." Reading farther one learns that herb hunter is not a herb hunter but that he is Herb Hunter, a ball player, who used to base ball in the confines of Wheeling, W. Va.

First thing we know women will be invading the prize ring as combatants. As time goes on they invade the more sacred precincts of the male domain. First they took up basketball, later it was the more strenuous job of rowing. And now the ladies in Lake Erie College, Painesville, Ohio, have formed a hockey team and will spend many hours during the ensuing winter clubbing each other upon the shin bones.

They don't number their football players up in Yale. That probably makes a big hit with the alleged players on the 1915 team. If those birds were numbered everybody would know who executed the fumbles. Now it merely is a matter of guessing.

Shoots is the name of a halfback who plays with the Columbus (Ohio) Panhandle team. Pickering is the quarterback. Five of the other nine players on the team are brothers who wear the last name of Nesser. Fred is an end, Alfred is a guard, Phil is a tackle, Ted is a halfback and Frank does the full-backing chores.

Duffy Lewis was offered a job on the automotive stage. "You've gotta wear grease paint," said the theatrical persons. "I do, do I?" snuffed the home run hero of the Red Sox. "Well, I don't. See? I won't doll up like a chorus man for anybody. I'm offa this here stage stuff right now."

And Duffy quit the stage—before he took it up.

BEST ELEVEN ALONG THE HUDSON RIVER

Poughkeepsie Newspaper So Characterizes Kingston High School Football Combination—The "Royal Rooters."

Referring to the football game in Poughkeepsie on Saturday, when the Kingston high school team defeated the home eleven, 48 to 0, the Poughkeepsie Star says: "The Kingston high school aggregation is the strongest football combination along the Hudson river. It is a combination of the Ulster Academy team and the old Kingston high school and they have been brought to the present stage of efficiency in the game through battling each other and the old spirit is still strong enough to make them the scrappiest players in this section of the state."

The Star continues: "The 'Royal Rooters' who follow the Kingston team on their conquest of the Hudson River Valley, are an innovation in the line of rooters. The school spirit runs high in the Kingston high school but then it is always easy enough to get rooters for a team that has never been defeated. The peculiar feature of the Kingston rooters is that the loudest rooters are the girls, and these strong-lunged young Amazons kept the side lines ringing Saturday with the school yells that surely have considerable to do with the team winning."

Ice Magnates Raise Onions.

The need of artificial ponds for the harvesting of ice is becoming a necessity as the winter seasons are prolonged by the breaking up of the Hudson river. J. N. Briggs of Coeymans has been working on an inland body of water for several seasons and now has a place from which a good sized acreage of ice can be harvested. The creation of these artificial ponds has brought into existence another industry. In the spring the water is released from the ponds and the drained fields are cultivated, making excellent onion beds. The equipment for pumping water on the fields is a protection against drought and the sediment from the water in the winter acts as a fertilizer.

Greenfield Optical Corporation.

Articles of incorporation of Seadrons, Incorporated, of Greenfield, in the town of Wawarsing, have been filed with the secretary of state at Albany and in the Ulster county clerk's office. The company is organized to manufacture and deal in optical goods and has a capital of $20,000, consisting of 200 shares of the par value of $100 each. The directors are Jacob Seadron, Louis Harold Seadron, Joseph Seadron and Irwin Seadron, all of No. 403 Grand street, New York city.

To Decide Who Died First.

Surrogate McCauley of Rockland county is called upon to decide whether Mrs. James West or her son, James West, died first. The automobile accident near Haverstraw a year ago when an Erie Railroad train hit the son's car, died first. The distribution of $25,000 hangs on the decision. Both were dead when picked up. If the mother died first, Gerald's widow and children can claim half her estate, but if the son died first, the estate goes to the surviving son.

Ponckhockie Church Officers.

The Ponckhockie Union Church was organized on Sunday by the adoption of a constitution and by-laws and the election of officers. Trustees elected were Charles Lahl, Jr., Surrogate Walter N. Gill and Sherwood T. Wells. Deacons elected were Charles M. DuBois, David Gill, Jr., George A. Leverich and William Kolts. John R. Tamney was elected treasurer and William D. Addis was elected clerk.

Too Few Judges for Work.

The taking from the trial bench of Justice Aaron V. S. Cochrane of Hudson and placing him on the appellate division, third department, bench, overburdens the justices left in this department, lawyers believe. The reduction of the trial judges will interfere with the regular term work. The transfer leaves but three trial judges in this department. Lawyers declare that they are now over-worked.

WHAT CAUSES COLDS?

This question is asked every day. A cold is really a fever, not always caused by the weather but often due to disordered blood or lack of important food-elements. In changing seasons fat-foods are essential because they distribute heat by enriching the blood and so render the system better able to withstand the varying elements. This is the important reason why Scott's Emulsion should always be taken for colds, and it does more—builds strength to prevent sickness.

Scott's Emulsion contains Nature's rare strength-building fats, so skillfully blended that the blood profits from every drop. It is free from harmful drugs or alcohol. Sold at drug stores—always get the genuine.

Electricity Sterilizes Milk.

Milk can be sterilized by electricity, says a writer in "Farm and Fireside." At the University of Liverpool, England, it was found that by the use of electricity the number of bacteria is reduced greatly, all the colon bacilli—the bacteria of bowel troubles—and their allies are destroyed; all the tuberculosis germs are killed; no chemical change nor change in taste is made in the milk.

Calls London's Words Treason.

Captain William D. Finkle of the 13th Coast Defence, N. G. N. Y., has protested to the National Security League against the circulation through the mails of an envelope which has Jack London's article, "A Good Soldier," printed in red ink on the reverse. He declares it is treason. "A good soldier is a blind, heartless, murderous machine," says the article. "No man can fall lower than a soldier."

Industries More Active.

Thirteen hundred representative factories with 500,000 employees, reporting to the bureau of statistics and information of the State Industrial Commission, paid 4 per cent more wages October than in September. Each month since June the manufacturing industries of the state have shown progressively greater activity than in the corresponding months of last year.

Sunday on Preparedness.

Billy Sunday said in a recent sermon, according to "The Kansas City Times": "I believe in a big navy, as big as you can get. We may not have to use it. You have the fire escapes on your houses, don't you, though you hope you'll never have to use them? You believe in life insurance, don't you? Well, then!"

THIS SOUTHERNER IS SOME FOOTBALL LAD.

F. N. Mayer.

E. N. Mayer, familiarly known to his fellow collegians at the University of Virginia as "Buck" is one of the best half backs in the business, and because of his remarkable playing against Yale in the game which Virginia won by a 10 to 0 score, may land a job on some expert's All-American eleven.

Mayer has been playing at Virginia for four years, and will receive his degree as Bachelor of Law next spring. He is 23 years old, and weighs 170 pounds. He plays left-half back.

In 1914 Mayer made more points than any other football player in the east. He personally scored 121 points, 102 of these came from 17 touchdowns which he made. He was captain of the 1914 Virginia team and All Southern half back. In the Thanksgiving Day game with North Carolina last year he made all the points scored by Virginia in their 20 to 3 victory. Last year in the Virginia-Yale game, Virginia gained more ground against the Elis than any other team save Harvard. Half of this ground was gained by Mayer. This year he has accumulated more than ninety points. In the game with Vanderbilt on Nov. 6 Mayer made two touchdowns, springing 85 yards through the entire Vanderbilt team for one of them. He is one of the fastest half backs and best line plungers seen on an eastern gridiron this year. His accomplishments are not restricted to the gridiron. He has a record of 10 1-5 seconds for the hundred yard dash and has made it in 10 flat unofficially. He puts the shot 42 feet 3 inches, can do 22 feet 6 inches in the broad jump and 5 feet 8 inches in the high jump.
